January 2018

A new year, hopefully an easier one for all!

Couple of clarifications with respect to the last one. My personal health issues will not be included, nor any reference to my personal finances, except I hope to get to a point where I can use them for things I need. If anyone has questions, please call or send me an e-mail.

While attempting to find a file on the hard drive from my old computer, I found a conversation I had with a burro who was at the old place at one time. I was dealing with issues I've still not "solved", how to bring in enough money. I admit, when I agreed to do this, I must have made some assumptions about that, which seem to be false. Makes me wonder. I've not shared this before, because I'm not comfortable doing so. However, I give her, belatedly, credit for being a lot wiser than I am. So share it I am. Up to you what you think about it.

Meanwhile, we really need your help!

We do understand how the working and middle classes are being squeezed. None of the issues we all face were caused by the ones we care for.

Thank You.

CONVERSATION WITH SACAJAWEA

AUGUST 21, 2008

Yes, Wynne, you should put this down, as we have talked about this before, and you may want to make reference to it as you decide how to share some of what we've discussed.

We will do all we can from the Council and spirit sides to help make things easier for you at the sanctuary, and you will still need most of the support from humans. Yes, humans are the species that is responsible for what out is of balance on Mother Earth. That is not said in judgment, but rather in observation. And since human kind has caused the negative results of its actions over time, humankind must do the biggest share of changing.

We will support your efforts as we can. And we do confirm that the existence of the Sanctuary you call Hacienda de los Milagros is extremely important to support the changes that must come. Let no misunderstanding arise about this, the changes will come, and humans will change or be left behind. What you are doing at the sanctuary is for all living things. It is not to be thought that you will fail, and yet you must get support from and through humans. That is your challenge, you and those who are willing and able to work with you.

There are those who will also do what must be done, and another of your challenges is to find them. Be a beacon, openly discussing what the sanctuary is and what your mission is, and they will find you. Don't dismiss help, and still be open to those who will go the extra mile. This is what we meant when we said to share, and also that the road would not be easy. And, again, not in judgment, just observation, one thing we notice is a lack of willingness on the part of most humans to commit to something, and do what must be done. When you made the contract that you are carrying out, you understood how it would be. Certainly not easy, yet think how wonderful it will be when you have stuck to it, and succeeded.

As to your health, it is important that you take care of your body, so you will be able to do what you know needs to be done. And we understand that you must have additional help to do that. Just another opportunity or challenge for you.

Nothing worth doing is ever easy, despite what some say, and only a small group of dedicated humans is really needed to move mountains. And if humans now had that dedication, the world would be different. You were chosen, and you said yes, for good reason. As Francisco said some years ago, please remind him (you), "his name is not an accident".

It is time to share these things, and do not concern yourself with what others think of it. It is truth, and will find fertile ground. We share your physical pain, brother. We take as much of it from you as we can, else we would take it all. Don't lose heart. Your path is true, and there is not time or energy to sugar coat any longer.

Sacajaweah.
